9 September 1960

Your Excellency,

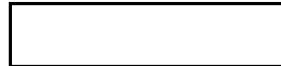

Despite the fact that I may perhaps be worthy of help
my frequent letters seem to be of no avail.

Please understand -- I wish to live.

I am attaching a clipping from a local newspaper which pertains to your organization and to you.

For God's sake I beg you to help me.

Your Humble Servant,

STAT

(EXECUTIVE REGISTRY FILE

STAT

Besides the painful fracas of international struggle following the shooting down of the U-2 spy plane it proved one thing beyond any doubt. Namely, while Nikita jovially spoke in New York about the cooperation of the world's two leading powers and the leaders of the American public applauded him enthusiastically CIA, the official spy organization under the leadership of Allan Welsh Dulles, brother of Dulles, the former secretary of state, operated uninterruptedly in a giant skyscraper less than one kilometer from the scene of the banquet. This organization which has the prerequisites of a ministry functions with several thousand workers and a budget totaling several billions. It admittedly is engaged--with absolute rights-- in gathering information essential to the security of the United States. Its personnel is recruited from the nation's most qualified youth. After a security clearance far surpassing the most daring dreams of the GPU the selected candidates participate in a specialized training course lasting several years.

Besides the language, literature, and general knowledge of the respective country the study courses --after complete mastering of the most modern scientific knowledge--also include ^{the} elements of psychology and ~~important~~ ^{of a neutral} profession. The spy candidate then becomes submerged in some Siberian kolkhoz, Hong Kong port, or office of an East Berlin factory so that he may send in dribblets back to Headquarters a small portion of the gigantic exposing game which the leaders at Headquarters screen day and night with the aid of electronic equipment in order to arrive at answers to ~~the~~ puzzling questions. Every single communist publication and every radio broadcast beamed beyond the Iron Curtain is carried in detail and the office machines are capable of translating from Russian into English 16,000 words per minute.

This organization sponsored the spy flights in order to obtain accurate data on the uncharted military targets of Russia. In the era of nuclear rockets a map based on accurate aerial photography is of vital importance. The infrared receivers of the U-2 planes contributed valuable and indispensable data towards the ascertainment of Soviet military targets.
